

ABSTRACT

A system comprises a first node that provides a source broadcast request for data. The first node is operable to respond in a first manner to other source broadcast requests for the data while the source broadcast for the data is pending at the first node. The first node is operable to respond in a second manner to the other source broadcast requests for the data in response to receiving an ownership data response at the first node.